

Action Plan and Rationale

Based on my conversations with my colleagues and students' parents, it is clear that many families feel worried and anxious about supporting their children at home. Some feel that language barriers or learning differences might hinder them from being fully involved. As someone who grew up in an evolving city like San Diego, I want all students in my classroom to feel confident. I have created this resource list to provide families with tools that are both informational for parents and interactive for students. I have shared this with you and your child so you always have these tools ready to help them succeed.

Simple Ways to Help Your Child Learn to Read

1. Read aloud with your child daily.
2. Praise your child's efforts and progress.
3. Let your child see you read for pleasure.
4. Use silly, exaggerated voices when reading aloud.
5. Visit the library together often.
